

Electronic Technology Expo & Symposium

Sponsored by IRIS

WHO: The Independent Representatives Information Service (IRIS) is a non-profit organization founded in 1965 and led by a volunteer Board of Directors.

WHAT: Comprised of four regions including Northeast Ohio, Southwest Ohio, Western Pennsylvania and Southeast Michigan, IRIS hosts an annual Electronic Technology Expo & Symposium (in Cleveland, Cincinnati and Detroit) that brings together independent manufacturer's representatives and select manufacturer companies to showcase the latest in electronics, control, testing, R&D and instrumentation technologies, including symposiums and educational seminars.

The expos are the only venue in each region that are critically important to testing, R&D and engineering professionals seeking the newest product innovations and technical advances from major manufacturers and synergistic companies. Each event features dozens of exhibitors offering information, solutions and hands-on demonstrations of new and emerging products. (NOTE: select technical sessions now offer engineering professionals continuing education credits.)
